Welcome to the Euro-African Medium Wave Guide

What lies in front of you or what you see on your computer screen is the result of a lot of hard work and love.

In the mid-1990s I was becoming more and more interested in medium wave, in particular the European medium wave. I noticed that the sources I used to consult, the WRTH and Sender&Frequenzen, mostly contained concise frequency lists with nothing more than the frequency, station name and power output. This led to a continuous browsing between pages to get as much information as possible and make DXing easier. Just like many other DXers I started to make my own list with the information I could find. That information came especially from various club bulletins, but also from messages in the DXAntwerp Bulletin Board System. This was the internet's predecessor and meant a true revolution for DXers who could now exchange information through their computer.

At the time the EMWG was still called the Long and Medium Wave Guide for Europe, North Africa, and the Middle East and was initially drawn up in the Flemish language. As non-Flemish speaking DXers also became interested I switched to English and uploaded the list at regular intervals onto the DXA Bulletin Board.

Initially a modest attempt to help myself with the hobby, the list soon turned out to be a hole in the market. The later renamed European Medium Wave Guide caught on well, and thanks to some renowned DXers and DX clubs, the publication became more and more professional.

At the end of 2002 the EMWG could be consulted on-line and was now even more being kept up-to-date.

In December 2004, the EMWG was merged with James Niven's African Medium Wave Guide and subsequently covered not only the whole of Europe and the Middle East, but the whole of Africa as well.

Today, it is an indispensable tool for the medium wave DXer.

I truly hope you will enjoy and benefit from the EMWG during your DX activities.

Introduction to the EMWG

Contents

This publication gives an overview of literally all long and medium wave stations in Europe, Africa, and the Middle East.

Times

All times are in UTC: please subtract one hour during European Summer time (unless otherwise stated) if and when you are in a country in the northern hemisphere where Summer time is in order. However, please note that some stations do not move with Summer Time and keep programmes aligned with UTC. These are mainly international cross border broadcasters. Also North Africa and parts of Middle East do not observe Summer/Winter time differences. Other countries (e.g. Israel) move from Summer/Winter time on different dates to Western Europe.

Geography

The countries listed in this publication can be seen on the ITU list of EMWG countries (see page 8).

Only the European part of Russia is listed. At the (official) European side, the oblasts (republics) are: Nenetskiy avt. okrug (Naryan-Mar), Resp. Komi (Syktyvkar), Permskaya obl. (Perm), Resp. Bashkortostan (Ufa), Orenburgskaya obl. (Orenburg).

As for the coordinates information, please note that they are expressed in degrees and minutes.

Special stations

Low power stations in the UK (RSLs/LPAMs) as well as DRM stations are included only if they are broadcasting full-time or if they operate a regular schedule (e.g. on air during sports matches). Pirate stations are not listed (with the possible exception of Ireland, very regular pirate stations, and offshore stations).

Abbreviations

LPAM: Low Power AM; Px: programme; RSL: Restricted Service License; Tx: transmitter

Mo-Tu-We-Th-Fr-Sa-Su: Monday-Tuesday-Wednesday-Thursday-Friday-Saturday-Sunday

Feedback & Update information

This list is by no means considered to be entirely correct and complete. Your feedback is most welcome and will help improving this list so it meets the needs of all users. You are welcome to join the EMWG mailing list at <http://groups.yahoo.com/group/emwg>.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR PDF USERS:

Introduction to Long and Medium Wave

On shortwave the tropical bands are known as the bands to listen to local, regional and also some international radio stations. What does this have to do with medium wave, you will ask. Well, medium wave has the same function, but on a European scale. This can seem less interesting, but it is not. As Europeans, we generally feel more related to the European cultures, of which we do not always know that much about. Also the reception possibilities are much more favourable, so you do not need any specialised equipment.

General Information

The majority of broadcasters on medium wave are local stations. The transmitter is usually situated in the middle of the target area, which generally covers part of the country. The programmes consist of music and local information/advertising. Transmitter power ranges from 1 Watt to 100 kiloWatt, depending on the size of the target area and the interference that can be expected from other stations.

Mainly in Spain and the UK network stations occupy the band. These stations all broadcast the same programmes, except for some local interruptions. Sometimes the same frequency is being used by different transmitters. These are so-called synchronised networks; examples are BBC Radio 5 Live (693 & 909 kHz) and Virgin 1215.

Regional stations occur mainly in Spain. They cover a larger area of the country than local stations. Apart from Spain, this is a typically American type of station.

Due to the relative smallness of the European countries, medium wave is ideal for international stations. Contrary to other continents, some high power transmitters suffice to guarantee a large coverage.

Another type of stations are micro-power stations, such as the British LPAM stations. These stations usually transmit with only 1 Watt of power, just enough to cover the area of a school, football field or hospital. Despite the limited power, these stations are sometimes heard hundreds of kilometres further on.

Finally, medium wave is also a favourite band for clandestine and pirate stations. The clandestine stations can be found mainly in the Middle East, the pirate stations are located especially in The Netherlands, UK, Greece, and Serbia.

Several other stations can be found on medium wave (navigation beacons, utility stations), but we only cover broadcast stations here.

News & current affairs

Many listen to medium wave for information on current affairs. You can listen the whole day long to some broadcasters to keep up-to-date with the news. There is of course the renowned BBC World Service which can be heard in English on 648 kHz 24 hours per day.

Then there is something like Talkradio, a programme concept wherein current and less current affairs are discussed, but with direct participation from the listeners (usu. over the phone). These kind of programmes are known to be rather dull and these stations do not really enjoy a great success. Try Talkradio UK (1053 & 1089 kHz).

What other countries provide us with information? A short overview: In Italy the RAI is interesting esp. at night. The programme Notturmo Italiano gives news in German, French and English, alternated with long periods in Italian. In Spain almost all stations provide you with loads of news, although most stations do look like talkradio. Just browse the band and you will encounter many of them. Germany also has some interesting stations: Deutschlandfunk and Deutschlandradio Kultur are national broadcasters. The regional broadcasters are also well represented. Some examples: MDR Info, Westdeutscher Rundfunk and the Hessischer RF. Other stations are: Flanders (927 kHz), Wallonia (621 kHz), The Netherlands (747 kHz), Luxembourg (234 kHz), Austria (1476 kHz), Bosnia-Herzegovina (612 kHz), Croatia (1125-1134 kHz), Denmark (1062 kHz), Ireland (567 kHz), Norway (1314 kHz), Slovenia (918 kHz) and Serbia (684 kHz).

When talking about news and current affairs, you cannot forget the international broadcasters. Although you probably know most of them, I'm giving here an overview of those that can best be heard in Western Europe: Radio Vlaanderen Internationaal (1512 kHz), although it has given most of its best transmitting times to other broadcasters such as Deutsche Welle and especially Radio Nederland Wereldomroep. We already mentioned the BBC. Radio Sweden (1179 kHz) and YLE Radio Finland (963 kHz) have been there for years. This is also valid for the Voice of Russia that can be heard evenings in English, French and German on 1215 & 1323 kHz. Radio Tirana can be heard in several languages on 1458 kHz. Larger stations like the BBC and Deutsche Welle also use relay transmitters in the Mediterranean with programmes for the Middle East. Those transmitters are rarely heard in Western Europe though.

Other programme types

If you are very much interested in sports, then medium wave is for you: BBC Radio 5 Live (693-909 kHz) informs you all day long on sport events. The BBC World Service also has some special sport programmes. If you're interested in the Spanish Primera División, then you need to listen esp. in weekends to the Spanish broadcasters. Almost every station covers the games live. The general Spanish public believes stations exaggerate, but they really only broadcast what the listeners want to hear. Americans can get information on the American Super Bowl, the NBA or the Baseball games on AFN (873 kHz). Most other stations also give sport information, but only when it is relevant.

You would be surprised to see how many types of music can be found on medium wave. It is impossible to give you a full overview of the music on medium wave. Here's a selection:

For pop and rock music, tune into Virgin Radio (1215 kHz) and Arrow Rock Radio (675 kHz). For Scottish folk music try BBC Radio Scotland (810 kHz) esp. evenings between 21.00 and 23.00utc. For Irish folk music try RTE Radio 1 (252 & 567 kHz). Jazz is also a frequently heard on medium wave. Listen evenings to Radio Praha (954 kHz). Classical music can be found everywhere, mainly on the Eastern European stations. You can also find beautiful local music, e.g. on Radio Slovenia (918 kHz). If you like Asian music, tune into Asian Sound Radio (963 kHz) and Sunrise Radio (1458 kHz). As you can see, for music medium wave is the place to be.

Just as on shortwave, the inevitable religious stations are well represented on medium wave. First of all there's Vatican Radio (1530 kHz) that can be heard in several languages. Via the Voice of Russia transmitters, you can regularly hear the German Universelles Leben. Another German station is Evangeliums Rundfunk. This religious station can be heard all day long on 1539 kHz. These are the main stations, but there are others.

Outside Europe

We can also pick up stations from outside Europe. Algeria is a regular client. Tune to 891 and 981 kHz. A little bit further away lies Saudi Arabia. When Radio Luxemburg has left 1440 kHz, you can listen to the Arab station. Pay attention, though, because Radio France International also uses this frequency from Moscow.

When propagation conditions are favourable, All India Radio Nagpur can be heard on 1566. Try just before sunset. You can also try to listen to stations from the American continent at night, but then we are talking about pure DXing, and not programme listening.

Important

This overview clearly shows that medium wave is some kind of treasure. It is important to know that this treasure can hold quite a few surprises. When you're tuning to a frequency, please never assume it will be a certain station without having heard an identification. The best example is the British local stations. Several stations occupy one single frequency. It can happen that you are suddenly hearing an other station than you are used to on that frequency. Exactly that is so typical for medium wave. And exactly that makes medium wave so much more exciting than shortwave.

DRM

A recent development on medium wave is digital broadcasting. DRM, Digital Radio Mondiale, is a digital transmission type that brings FM quality to medium wave, with less power output. Unfortunately, it also means the listener needs to buy a new receiver, capable of receiving these digital signals.

Listening tools

Logically you can listen to medium wave with each receiver equipped to receive that band. If you're only interested in the strong signals, any receiver will do. Especially the older receivers -from the time before FM- will perform excellent. If you also want to listen to weaker stations, then a receiver with digital readout -if possible with SSB- is preferred.

Generally the built-in ferrite antenna of most receivers suffices. However, it can be very interesting to buy or make a loop antenna. This is very handy to separate two stations broadcasting on the same frequency (but coming from a different direction). A nice example in my area is Radio Vilnius and Südwestfunk on 666 kHz. A loop antenna allows me to choose nicely what station I want to listen to. This can also be done with the built-in ferrite antenna, but you risk having to put the receiver in such way that the speaker is directed away from you. A longwire is not directional (unless it involves a long beverage antenna) and you'll mostly hear both stations at the same time.

But don't let this frighten you.. A normal receiver is more than enough to start with.

Happy listening!
